Not illustrated. 1909 Excerpt: .like whistling for a dog to come so you can kick him in the slats. It s the same old game of the man on the inside making it hard for the fellow on the outside. If you doubt this go to a lodge some time when there is a question of raising more revenue and set the two propositions of a raise of dues or a raise of fees before the body, and watch which one they adopt. The average Mason thinks that having had the degrees conferred on him makes him a creature apart from his fellows, and that they should look up to him and curry his favor; when, if the committee who had examined him had found out half the truth, he would have had so many black balls against him that--well, I s pose one ought to leave the goat out of Masonic matters as much as possible. You seem to think that the average Mason is a fakir and a fraud. Are you the average Mason? I suppose so. Why? In that event you are right. The Master sent you out to examine this visitor, and you come back and confess that you did nothing of the sort. That you simply went out and had fun with him. It is exactly the same class of joke as stretching a string to trip up a blind man, or handing a red-hot penny to a hard-working hand-organ monkey. If you hope to fatten...
